

2022-2023

Rome

McMaster Fellows

Kathryn Phillips, Krieger Visiting Scholar in Religious Studies

Kimberly Kuiper, Assistant Professor of Communication Studies

This McMaster initiative investigates the best practices in helping refugees integrate into their host countries.

McMaster Scholars

Ezekiel Baffour, Sophomore, Nursing - This project focuses on the health of refugees due to limited access to healthcare, poor living conditions, and psychological trauma.

Carmen Caldwell, Senior, Graphic Design- This project involves understanding the distribution of information into marginalized communities, such as refugees.

Will Garlock, Junior, History - This project focuses on refugee education and the strategies that aid refugee children to get the education that they deserve.

Eden Harter, Sophomore, Social Work - This project is concerned with the development of young children (physically, socially, emotionally, and academically) and how their development can be maintained up to their cultural standards.

Conner Pool, Junior, Social Work - This research is focused on the negative impact of experiences as a refugee on mental health and the barriers to mental healthcare for refugees.

Rontonio Scott, Junior, Exercise Science - This project focuses on the nutritional needs of refugees and the resources available to them in their host countries.